Dear Dr. Vasilescu:

My name is Guillermo Escalante and I am the corresponding author to an article entitled "Injury patterns and rates of Costa Rican CrossFit® participants- a retrospective study." The article was published in the Medicina Sportiva Journal Number 48 in 2017. We would like to alter the verbiage used when we refer to the word CrossFit® throughout the article and change it to the word functional fitness training. CrossFit, Inc. has protected its rights in the Trademark through a series of trademark registrations around the world including by registrations and/or applications in the United States. As such, CrossFit, Inc. has established extensive use of the Trademark in commerce and has acquired protectable trademark rights in the Trademark. Since our study does not refer to the specific fitness training methodology to which the Trademark relates, our team of authors feel that functional training is a more appropriate term to use for the purposes of this manuscript.

We request that you publish this errata as related to our manuscript.

Sincerely,

Guillermo Escalante
